

The Backwards Game is a super silly party game played in teams. All of the questions and challenges are incredibly easy... if you do them forwards. However, in this game, EVERYTHING happens in reverse...

At the start of a game, each team decides on a secret five letter word, for example BREAD which they write BACKWARDS on their BACKWARDS BOARD and cover up with five mystery cards.

Each team has thirty seconds to whizz through as many backwards clues as possible, across five types of clue card.

After thirty seconds is up, the team score how many correct answers they got by ticking them off inside the circles on the BACKWARDS BOARD.

The winning team is the first to correctly guess the rival team's secret word, and say it FORWARDS. If, however they make an incorrect guess, the opposing team can remove any mystery card from their opponent's BACKWARDS BOARD they like.

When a team ticks off three of the circles, they can try and guess a letter on the rival team's BACKWARDS BOARD- 'hangman' style. If the letter they guess is in the other team's word, that team must reveal it by removing the mystery card.

There are five types of cards for players to take on. Doing each of these tasks forwards should be simple, but doing them backwards is a lot more challenging.

Players select which card they're going to play on their turn by rolling a dice... the sixth side gives them a free guess of a letter on their opponents BACKWARDS BOARD

Once a team has rolled the dice, the opposing team time 30 seconds on a phone stopwatch. In this time, the team playing have to get through as many backwards clues as possible.
